Experience The 2018 Greenbrier Classic from an insider's perspective

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. – (April 26, 2018): West Virginia's biggest summer sporting event is 66 days away, and The Greenbrier Classic needs your help to make this year's PGA TOUR FedExCup stop in West Virginia the best one yet.

More than 1,000 volunteers of all ages converge on The Old White TPC each year to make sure The Greenbrier Classic runs smoothly, and tournament officials are looking to fill some final spots for this year's event, which will take place July 2-8.

Laser Operators (Must be at least 13 years old) – Volunteers laser operators are in charge of the PGA TOUR's ShotLink operations. ShotLink collects and disseminates scoring and statistical data on every shot by every player in real time. Laser equipment is located on fairways and greens, requiring two volunteers for each laser. Training and on-site support will be provided by the PGA TOUR ShotLink staff for volunteers who want to see the action from inside the ropes. Volunteers are needed Thursday through Sunday, with Wednesday serving as a practice day to learn the equipment.

Marshals (Must be at least 13 years old) – Marshals will ensure fair play and manage crowd control to secure the safety of both the players and caddies inside the ropes and the gallery outside the ropes. Golf knowledge is beneficial for volunteers in this position, and there may be long periods of standing or walking in hot conditions. Marshals are needed Monday through Sunday.

The thrill of working during the exciting tournament rounds and getting a front row seat to see some of the best athletes in the game isn't the only advantage of volunteering for The 2018 Greenbrier Classic. Volunteer incentives include a complimentary round of golf or complimentary spa treatments, as well as a voucher for a night's stay at The Greenbrier for the incredible rate of $79. Additional incentives are available for additional shifts worked.

Volunteer packages also include an official tournament golf shirt, an official tournament outerwear piece, and official tournament hat, a volunteer credential providing access to the grounds for all seven days, a commemorative volunteer pin and a meal voucher for each shift worked for only $85.

For volunteers ages 13 to 15, The Greenbrier Classic has two Junior Volunteer Packages for 2018. The first package is free and does not include the incentives. The second package is $45, with incentives included. Juniors can serve on a number of different committees and are required to work a minimum of two shifts throughout the week.
